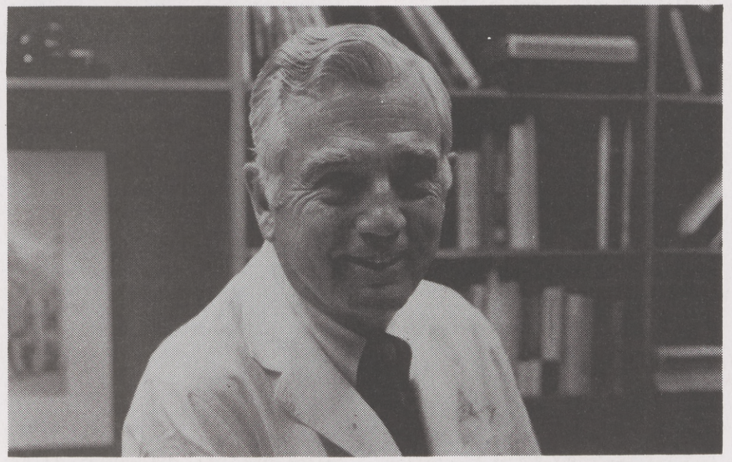
Vol. 7 No. 13, June 27-July 31, 1981

TODAY & TOMORROW



Chancellor Francis A. Sooy, MD, has announced plans to retire from the Chancellorship effective July 1, 1982, in order to devote more time to his medical practice.

A noted surgeon in the field of otology, Sooy is the fifth physician to serve as a chancellor in the UC system, and the only one to combine administrative duties with an active clinical practice.

In a letter he wrote to UC President David S. Saxon of his intention to retire, Sooy declared in part:

"It is time to relinquish my administrative duties. I will have served as chancellor for almost ten years, and will have completed most of the tasks I had set for myself when I came into this office.

"The UCSF campus is in a very strong position, and it has been most rewarding to have been part of the exciting surge of academic excellence in all areas . . ."

In discussing Sooy's retirement with the UC Regents, Saxon pointed to the outstanding achievements which have occurred on our campus during Sooy's leadership over the past decade.

During that time, Saxon said, "UCSF has enhanced its position as one of the most distinguished health sciences campuses in the country, with a level of excellence reflected in the peer evaluation of its faculty; in the quality of its professional students, house officers and postdoctoral candidates in both basic and social and behavioral sciences; in the broad range of patient care referrals from all over the state, and indeed the rest of the country; and in the level of research funding and achievements that have emanated from UCSF."

Saxon noted that under Sooy's stewardship:

- the new School of Dentistry building was completed, enabling the school to achieve its commitment of increased enrollment, renewal of its accreditation, and the development, in cooperation with Speaker Willie Brown, of two community clinics in the underserved areas;
- the new Long Hospital and the modernized Moffitt Hospital projects have been brought almost to completion;
- the campus was able to turn around its relationship with the surrounding community from hostility in some quarters to pride and participation in UCSF;
- UCSF has become a major economic resource for the economy of San Francisco and one of its largest employers;
- UCSF has provided a unique opportunity for upward mobility in the health professions for people of all backgrounds;
- the campus has established a Board of Overseers, an advisory group of 20 members who, due to the national stature and enhanced reputation of the campus, have been drawn from the top ranks of the nation's business and community leaders.

Saxon also pointed to Sooy's "open door" philosophy of administration, whereby he has been willing to consult with all levels of faculty, staff and students and thus find solutions to small problems before they explode into big ones.

Sooy, a second generation UCSF faculty member, has played a leadership role in his profession, including last year being president of the Collegium Oto-Rhino-Laryngologicum Amiticitae Sacrum, an international association of ENT professors limited to 10 individuals from each country. He also served as director of the American Board of Otolaryngology, president of the national American Triological Society, the Pacific Coast Society, and was a member of the NIH national Advisory Neurological Diseases and Blindness Council.

NEWS BRIEFS

Four special awards recognizing major contributions to the clinical programs of the UCSF Hospitals and Clinics were presented at the annual meeting of the medical staff on June 11.

Baccarat crystal bears were awarded to Robert Derzon, former director of the UCSF Hospitals and Clinics, who is presently UCSF lecturer in Family and Community Medicine and a health care consultant for Lewin and Associates, Washington, D.C.; Jeanette Katz, former president of the Hospitals and Clinics Auxiliary and outgoing member of the UCSF Board of Overseers; Frances Larragueta, assistant dean of the School of Medicine; and Chancellor Francis A. Sooy, MD.

Featured speaker was David Allen, clinical professor, Psychiatry, who is president of the S.F. Medical Society. William B. Kerr, director of Hospitals and Clinics presented the awards to Larragueta and Sooy; Dean Julius R. Krevans of the School of Medicine to Derzon and Katz.

On June 15, George H. Lampe was awarded the first annual Julius R. Krevans Prize for Clinical Excellence, during the medical staff dinner at SFGH. John P. Garner received honorable mention. The $500 prize was established by the Gladstone Foundation Laboratories for Cardiovascular Disease to honor Krevans, who this year celebrated his tenth anniversary as dean. The award is given to a UCSF intern who shows "excellence in patient care, exemplified by clinical competence, professional conduct, concern for patients and interaction with all levels of staff including peers."

The following physicians were selected to serve as officers on the Executive Committee of the SFGH medical staff: Lawrence H. Pitts, Neurosurgery, chief of staff and chair of the executive committee; Jack W. McAninch, Urology, chair-elect; John P. Cello, Medicine, secretary. New Executive Committee members include: James R. Green, Obstetrics and Gynecology; John T. Hopkin, Psychiatry; Frank R. Lewis Jr., Surgery; and Merle A. Sande, Medicine.

Virginia E. White, PharmD, received the highest honor given a graduating senior in the School of Pharmacy during commencement exercises June 20.

Dean Jere Goyan presented White with the Bowl of Hygeia, by which the faculty and graduating students acclaimed her as "an individual who best exemplifies the qualities most desirable in a pharmacist."

White has held several posts during her years of study at UCSF including first year class president, vice president for Student Affairs in the Associated Students of the School of Pharmacy (ASSP), president of the ASSP, and fourth year class secretary/treasurer.

The bowl and serpent of Hygeia are the internationally recognized symbols of pharmacy. Hygeia was a legendary Greek goddess of health who tended the sick from a shallow bowl in her hand.

Bryan D. Hall, associate director of the UCSF Birth Defects Clinic and associate professor of Pediatrics, has been appointed associate director of Genetics at the University of Kentucky. His appointment, which includes beginning a new genetic unit at the university, is effective July 1.

Hall, one of the leading dysmorphologists in the country, was one of the key coordinators of UCSF's genetic satellite clinics around Northern California and Nevada. He has helped counsel countless families of children with genetic handicaps. Hall also was honored by pediatric residents this year with the Teacher of the Year Award.

The Nu Sigma Nu Endowment fund has been established under the auspices of UC, following the recent termination of the Nu Sigma Nu Alumni Foundation.

The fund, which now totals $69,000, will be managed by Julius R. Krevans, dean of the School of Medicine, and will be used for the purchase of books, journals and other educational materials for the Briggs-Barnett Library at SFGH.

The foundation was incorporated in 1968 to foster educational, scientific and literary activities.

UCSF Hospitals and Clinics has been awarded full accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. The combined accreditation licensure survey took place at UCSF in February. The report commended the administration for successful implementation of a number of recommendations made by the 1978 survey team.

Several UCSF health experts spoke at the "Third Annual Conference on Recognizing and Managing Poisonings and Toxicological Emergencies," held recently at the Jack Tar Hotel.

Speakers included Charles Becker, director of the Northern California Occupational Health Center and associate professor of Medicine and chief of Clinical Pharmacology at SFGH; Dean Sheppard and Jon Rosenberg, clinical instructors of Medicine; Neal Benowitz, assistant professor of Medicine and Psychology; and Kathryn M. Healey, assistant clinical professor of Pharmacy. In addition, moderators included Theodore G. Tong, associate clinical professor of Pharmacy and Clinical Pharmacology at SFGH.

The conference provided a critical review of common acute poisoning problems and presented current information on toxins in the environment and workplace.

Nelson B. Powell, a 1974 UCSF graduate from the School of Dentistry, will lecture on "The Prevention and Control of Medical Emergencies in the Dental Office." Powell is presently a resident in Head and Neck Surgery at Stanford.

The Gurley Lectureship is in honor of the 1908 graduate of the School of Dentistry, who taught here for 48 years. He was honored in 1958 by the Alumni Association as "Dentist of the Century."
